The PLO in 1966 said it: We will force our people to remain refugees against their will - or else there is no Palestinian cause

Arabs Adamant Against Absorption of Refugees

By THOMAS F. BRADY

Special to The New York Times

JERUSALEM (Jordanian Section), March 30—"The Arab states will not integrate the Palestine refugees because integration would be a slow process of liquidating the Palestine problem," Ahmed Shukairy, chairman of the Palestine Liberation Organization, declared in an interview today.

"Consequently, the refugees don't want to be integrated," he continued. "If there are no Palestinian people, there is no Palestinian cause. We can't conceive of a Babylonian cause today because there are no Babylonians. But we start from the premise that we will achieve the liberation of Palestine soon."

Arab refusal to assimilate the 1.3 million refugees now living in four host countries—Jordan, Syria, Lebanon and the Gaza Strip, controlled by the United Arab Republic—has been the subject of criticism from Israel and from the Western nations that have contributed to supporting the refugees for most of the 18 years since Israel came into existence.

Most of the critics would agree with Mr. Shukairy that the Arabs will not assimilate the refugees because they want to keep the Palestine issue alive.

warfare, not their own broad-casts, that produced the exodus. The basic problem is that integration of the ordinary, uneducated peasant refugee requires land. In Jordan, the only host country that has given refugees the full privileges of citizenship, arable land is not available. The other Arab countries reserve what land they can develop for their own citizens, who want it badly.

Refugee attitudes toward integration have two aspects. Conversations and interviews in their camps indicate that virtually all of them want to return to their land. But almost all of them want jobs now, or better jobs than they have. There is every reason to believe they would welcome economic integration to the degree that it would improve their lot.

Peasants Need Land

The basic problem is that integration of the ordinary, uneducated peasant refugee requires land. In Jordan, the only host country that has given refugees the full privileges of citizenship, arable land is not available. The other Arab countries reserve what land they can develop for their own citizens, who want it badly.

Iraq, where there are almost no refugees, has the most favorable land-to-man ratio among the Arab states, but even there any significant assimilation of outsiders would require large-scale development of irrigation.

A Western ambassador in one host country said recently:

"The way to solve the problem is to stimulate Arab economic development to the maximum. If the Arab countries begin to need manpower, refugees will automatically be absorbed."

The psychological and emotional obstacles to integration are great. The refugees and their hosts feel strongly that they got a raw deal in 1948, and their self-esteem demands formal reparation, particularly because of the impression that the Israelis are cleverer, abler and more modern than the Arabs.

The Arab armies that moved against Israel in 1948, after the Arabs rejected the United Nations partition of Palestine, were beaten, and the defeat still rankles.

A Refugee's Opinion

One educated refugee said the other day in private conversation that he favored going back to the original partition plan, which would cost Israel 27 percent of her present territory.

Asked if he agreed with Habib Bourguiba of Tunisia, whom other Arab leaders have denounced for suggesting negotiations with Israel on this basis, the refugee replied:

"Certainly not. Bourguiba wanted to negotiate. The solution must be imposed on Israel by the United Nations to show that Israel has been wrong."

The mystique of the refugees, fed by Arab broadcasts and by nostalgic talk, is based on the conviction that they have been grievously wronged. One commentator, Cecil Hourani, has written:

"In the dim twilight of the camps it is what has been lost that still beckons, not what can be done to take its place."

At a United Nations school in Gaza, a young refugee was learning the trade of an auto mechanic. He was scheduled to go to Sweden for on-the-job training. He spoke a little English.

Asked what he would do if he could get a permanent job in Sweden and if he met a girl he liked, he said: "I would come back. My country needs me."

Hamdi Hirsch, 40 years old, a representative of the Palestine Liberation Organization, was present at the interview. A native of Beersheba, now part of Israel, he said with great intensity:

"I will tell you something, and I wish you would quote me. If they try to leave, we will stop them, by force if need be."

From the New York Times, April 4, 1966:

(<https://timesmachine.nytimes.com/timesmachine/1966/04/04/79989945.html?pageNumber=14>)

JERUSALEM (Jordanian Sector), March 30 – “The Arab states will not integrate the Palestine refugees because integration would be a slow process of liquidating the Palestine problem.” Ahmed Shukairy. chairman of the Palestine Liberation Organization. declared in an interview today.

“Consequently. the refugees don’t want to be integrated.” he continued. “If there are no Palestinian people. there is no Palestinian cause. We can't conceive of a Babylonian cause today because there are no Babylonians. But we start from the premise that we will achieve the liberation of Palestine soon.”

The then-PLO leader is explicitly saying that he doesn't want the Arab nations to integrate the refugees because the "Palestinian cause" is more important than their human rights.

(The claim that the refugees didn't want to be integrated is a lie. Every time they had the chance to gain citizenship, in Jordan, Egypt, Lebanon or the West, they eagerly took that opportunity.)

The very end of the article makes this even more explicit. The reporter interviews a Palestinian who is about to go to Sweden for training as a mechanic. Even so, he insists that he would return – but there is a PLO official in the room during the interview.

Hamdi Hizrallah. 40 years old. a representative of the Palestine Liberation Organization, was present at the interview. A native of Beersheba. now part of Israel. he said with great intensity:

“I will tell you something. and I wish you would quote me. If they try to leave. we will stop them, by force if need be.”

I'm happy to quote him. It proves that creating and perpetuating the myth of a Palestinian people is more important to their leaders than their very lives.

And it also proves that Palestinian identity was so weak in the 1960s that the PLO was convinced that without a perpetual refugee problem, no one would want to identify as Palestinian.

Without UNRWA, they really would have gone the way of the Babylonians – and they would today be happy Syrians, Lebanese, Jordanians, Kuwaitis and Egyptians.

We have lots of ideas, but we need more resources to be even more effective. Please donate today (<https://www.patreon.com/user?u=3873701>) to help get the message out and to help defend Israel.

Palestinian Arab nationalism is artificial.

If Israel didn't exist, there would be no Palestinian Arab people. A true nation doesn't need compulsion to maintain itself.

Without compulsion, Palestinian identity falls apart and the leaders are well aware of it.

Like nothing else, it illustrates why in truth peace is impossible in the Middle East.

Without compulsion, Islam would not exist. Both Islam itself and the myth of a Palestinian people are propagated with bloodshed and violence.

1. Has anyone seen what happens when the BDS people see facts like these? I'd like to know. Some are sincere in their wish to help the Pals. Others are antisemites.

2. Elder said that some Palestinian Arabs would today be happy Syrians. Today, there are no happy Syrians.

They worship at the golden altar of the works of the flesh, Gal 5:19-21, 19 Now the works of the flesh are evident, which are: adultery, fornication, uncleanness, lewdness, 20 idolatry, sorcery, hatred, contentions, jealousies, outbursts of wrath, selfish ambitions, dissensions, heresies, 21 envy, murders, drunkenness, revelries, and the like; of which I tell you beforehand, just as I also told you in time past, that those who practice such things will not inherit the kingdom of God.

Another important note here that seems to be overlooked - he says that if the refugees will be integrated "there will be no Palestinian people" (and therefore no Palestinian cause). So the only thing keeping this so called ancient and distinct nation existing is their refugee certificates? Some "nation"...

This blog may be a labor of love for me, but it takes a lot of effort, time and money. For over 14 years and 30,000 articles I have been providing accurate, original news that would have remained unnoticed. I've written hundreds of scoops and sometimes my reporting ends up making a real difference. I appreciate any donations you can give to keep this blog going. (<https://www.patreon.com/elderofziyon>)
